

FORMER QUEEN AT TABERNACLE

Liliuokalani and Her Suite Attend Services.

RECITAL IN HER HONOR

ELDER TENROSE CRITICISES OTHER DENOMINATIONS.

Liliuokalani of Hawaii, with her suite and a large number of her former subjects who have become residents of this city, occupied seats of honor in the tabernacle at the afternoon services yesterday, and after the regular meeting a splendid recital on the great organ was given by the queen and her party by Professor J. J. McClellan, under the direction of the first presidency of the Mormon church. Some 8,000 people thronged the tabernacle during the services, and at least 1,000 more came to the recital and filled the gallery, where the queen and her party were given seats.

The royal party occupied front seats to the right of the pulpit, in the section set apart for the returned missionaries, and the Hawaiian residents of this city, numbering some thirty or forty, occupied seats immediately behind their former queen.

The services were opened with a song, "Praise to the Saints," followed by prayer by W. W. Cluff, formerly bishop of Coalinga, in his prayer, referred to the royal visitor in the following words: "Bless the expanse of the wide world, O God, who with great wisdom and understanding and be merciful unto her. She has been a friend and a helper to thy servants who have labored in the capacity of traveling elders among her people. She has caused that they be protected in their labors, and for all these good acts and her kindness of heart we pray that thou wilt bless her in her old age."

Discourse by Elder Penrose. After a song by the choir Elder C. W. Penrose arose and occupied the time of the service in a doctrinal address, in which he set forth the teachings of the Mormon church and criticized the doctrines of other churches, whose leaders, he said, planned their faith to a dead book and ridiculed the idea of modern revelation.

"We are living in an age of progress," said Mr. Penrose, "but there is not the proper progress in religious ideas, because the people are being enlightened by revelations of centuries ago. They are being taught by revelations of centuries ago, and cannot expect progress under such conditions. We believe in the Bible, and believe that it is a precious book, but we also believe that God gives revelation to guide his children today as well as he did in biblical times."

"The church was once a perfect body. How is it today? Have the so-called Christian churches one God, one body and one spirit? Where are the apostles, prophets, and the divine spirit which Christ said should dwell among his people? Where is the Christian church today, as it did exist? Look at the divisions, contentions and even bloodshed caused by them."

"There is none, and cannot be any progress in religious ideas, because the teachers of these so-called Christian churches pin their faith to a dead book. They have nothing else; they have no revelations."

"The power of healing as taught by the Bible is an essential power of the believer, but if he claims to have it, he is ridiculed and the hired ministers say, 'Away with him. He is not fit to live.'"

The anthem "Hosanna" was rendered by the choir, and the services closed with prayer by Bishop Preston.

Recital Programme. While Professor McClellan played "Hawaii Pono" an Hawaiian national hymn, ex-Queen Liliuokalani and her party were conducted to the east end of the balcony and given the seats which are considered the best in the tabernacle for acoustic effects.

About 8,000 people filled the tabernacle, with the queen and her party, listened to the following excellent programme on the great organ by Professor McClellan, assisted by H. S. Goddard:

"Tannhauser March".....Wagner
"A Minion Gavotte".....Thomas
"Hymn of the Nuns".....Wey
"Pilgrim's Song of Hope".....Batiste
"Capriccio".....Lenaigre
"Male Quartet".....Haberber
"Cradle Song".....Haberber

County School Closed.

Several Diphtheria Cases in the Winchester School.

Owing to the prevalence of diphtheria the county health board yesterday closed for one week the Winchester school, about a mile below Murray. Five cases of diphtheria were reported among the pupils of this school at about the same time and County Physician Mayo and Dr. Ferber of Murray yesterday made an investigation. They found that in addition to the five cases reported there had been many other cases of "sore throat" that had never been reported to the health authorities and never treated. They are of the opinion that many of these are diphtheria cases and decided upon closing the school as the most effective measure to stamp out the contagion. The school building will be thoroughly disinfected during the week.

Extended the Call.

Pastorate of Christian Church Offered to Rev. P. W. Pinkerton.

The congregation of the Central Christian church of this city voted unanimously yesterday to extend a call to Rev. P. W. Pinkerton of Kenton, Ohio, to the pastorate of the church here, to succeed Rev. W. H. Bagby. The official board of the church, having decided that Mr. Pinkerton was the man for the place, the matter was laid before the members at the morning service yesterday and there was not a dissenting voice.

The action of the congregation will be communicated to Mr. Pinkerton immediately and it is expected that an answer from him will be received soon.

CHILDREN WIN PRIZES.

Result of an Interesting Contest in the Presbyterian Sunday School.

Beginning early in September the pupils of the First Presbyterian Sunday school began the study of five lessons on Saint Joseph, and for the purpose of stimulating work on the subject and bringing out the best thoughts and talents of the pupils, Superintendent Thomas Weir signified his intention of offering prizes for papers on the subject containing not over 800 words. Two weeks were allowed in which to prepare after the lessons ended and the contest closed and prizes were awarded yesterday morning.

Superintendent Weir spoke most enthusiastically of the result and declared that splendid interest had been aroused, that the papers were many of them real gems and the work of the little children, who were too young to write and who therefore took part orally, proved one of the brightest features of the contest.

No less than forty-two papers were prepared, and eleven of the little ones took part orally, making the contest list foot up to fifty-three, and the prizes consisted of coins of this year's mintage, ordered from San Francisco especially for the contest by Mr. Weir, with the idea that they would prove all the more valuable as souvenirs.

In arranging the contest every possible precaution was taken to make it absolutely fair and impartial and no person was allowed to act on a committee where they would be called upon to pass on the work of their own children, or relatives.

At the outset a contest committee composed of Professor R. J. Caskey and Mesdames G. B. Blakely and William Igleheart was named. This committee decided to cut the school up into five classes or grades and prizes were arranged for each.

The first class embraced the first year pupils. The second, the graduates from the first year. The third, all the pupils in the main school up to 12 years of age. Fourth, those from 12 to 16, and fifth, all whose ages ranged from 16 to 21 years.

Each paper submitted to the judges of the different grades, went in with a private mark to designate to whom it belonged and a corresponding mark with the contestant's name was filed with the contest committee. Following is the list of judges and prize winners in the several classes:

First Class, Oral—Judges: Miss Pollock, Mrs. Hancock, Miss Frink. First prize, $1, John Moser; second, 50 cents, Beverly Chambers. Very favorably mentioned were Olive Jones, Myrtle Green and Irene McBride. The other contestants in this class were Catherine Livingston, Dorothy Bailey, Ruth Chambers, Marjorie Pierce, Helen Bell and George Niles, and each received a 25-cent piece as a memento of the occasion.

Second Class (graduates from first year)—Judges: Mrs. Gattrell, Miss Ethel Paul, Mrs. Blakely. Contestants: Clara Hughes, Lois Caskey, Hazel McKinney, Paul Martin, George Golding, Charles Baxter, William Igleheart, George Igleheart and James Leary. First prize, $2.50, James Leary; second, $1, Lois Caskey, the other contestants each receiving 25 cents.

Third Class (first grade in main school)—Judges: Mrs. McVicker, Miss Tibbals, Mr. G. A. Duncan. First prize, Cleo Weaver; second, $3, Edna Shepard. There were ten entries and Aline McMillan received favorable mention.

Fourth Class, Fifteen Entries—Judges: Mrs. Perry Heath, Mrs. Outcalt. First prize, $1, Frank Miller; second, $1, Lloyd Brooke; third, $1, Frank Miller.

Fifth Class, Eight Entries—Judges: Major Hill, Mrs. Boggs, Mrs. Elliott. First prize, $5, Miss Miriam Jones; second, $3, Miss Stella Brainerd.

It has been arranged that next Sunday evening a special Sunday school service will be held and a number of the prize-winning papers will then be read.

LOOKS BAD FOR PARRY.

Teamster Identified Yesterday as the Assailant of Another Little Girl.

George Parry, the teamster who was identified Saturday as the assailant of little Ethel Madsen, was identified yesterday as the perpetrator of another vicious assault upon a little girl. The victim of the assault was 9-year-old Janette Cury, the daughter of Ray Cury, the night watchman at the postoffice. The child and her brother both positively identified Parry as the person who had committed the crime. The assault occurred about a month ago near the child's home on Indiana avenue, near the Jordan river. The little girl and her younger brother left home early in the evening to meet their father, and while walking about met a man who induced them to follow him towards the river, supposedly in search of a cow. An attempt was made to perpetrate a dastardly crime upon the little girl, but the man failed and made his escape.

Parry, the father of the child brought her and her brother to the police station, and as soon as Parry was brought before them both identified him as the assailant.

Parry, it is known anything about the assault was visibly nervous and excited when taken before the children.

HARVEST HOME SERVICE.

Special Programme Given by Episcopal Sunday Schools.

The services at St. Mark's cathedral last night were devoted to the Sunday School Harvest Home festival and the respective candidates for membership in the order of St. Andrew. The children of St. Mark's and St. Paul's Sunday schools gathered in the church in large numbers and contributed to the musical programme of the evening. The first part of the service was devoted to a song service by the children, assisted by the choir. At the close of the musical service Dean Eddie delivered a short address to the children on the "Joy of Giving." "To be thankful," said he, "is to be happy. Where there is no gratitude there is no happiness, so, if we want to be happy and rejoice in ourselves, we must be grateful, and show our gratitude. First of all, we should be thankful to God, for what he has done for us, and one way of expressing gratitude to him is by prayer. Another way is by doing what we can for others. We show gratitude to God by doing some little kindness to one of our fellow beings, and God will reward us for it."

After a hymn, the members of the junior order of St. Andrew marched to the pulpit and a young man who were candidates for membership were received into the order.

After this ceremony Miss Rosemary Goss, a beautiful singer lately from New York sang "There is a Green Hill Far Away."

The services closed with a song by the choir.

BEER WAS SOLD WITH THE TRIPE

Restaurant Man Arrested For Violating Sunday Law.

LOOKOUT ATTACKS OFFICER

ONE SALOON ALSO CAUGHT SELLING BEER.

One restaurant and one saloon, where the Sunday law was being violated, were raided by the police last night, and the attendants at each place arrested. The restaurant was that of Sam Potts, a tripe restaurant, at 41 East First South street, and the saloon was Dr. Potts' saloon on the corner of Main and Market streets. Potts, who runs his restaurant in connection with a saloon, had a sentry posted at the door, who attempted to prevent the entrance of the police, but the officers got in in time to find the tripe dresser serving beer and dressing tripe a bunch of soldiers who were partaking very freely of the combination.

The officers suspected that the restaurant man was violating the Sunday law, waiting until a man came out. Officers Hempel and Burt rushed into the place. At the door Philip Booth, the lookout, met them and making a flying tackle on Officer Hempel's lower extremities, attempted to throw him to the floor. At the same time he yelled to Sam to look out, for the police were coming. Hempel soon induced Booth to loose his hold by using his club on the young man's arm, and the latter, in a hasty retreat, he found Potts in the act of clearing away the signs of his guilt. A number of soldiers were seated around the table and a quantity of beer which had been spilled by the proprietor in his haste covered the tables. A snoring drunk was found in one corner, and the officers were satisfied as to the evidence they had for Potts' case. Potts, however, was escorted to the police station. Potts was released on his own recognizance and Booth was locked up on a charge of interfering with an officer. Striving was put in the drunk house at 25 cents.

Bartender Caught. Dr. Potts' saloon, on the corner of Main and Market streets, was the first place raided, and the bartender, S. Schaeffels, was placed under arrest. Officer Simpson caught a customer in the act of leaving the saloon with three bottles of beer under his arm, and upon entering the place found several men. Early last evening Officer Simpson, E. Norburg, who lives at 27 East Fourth South street, coming out of the rear door with a card, wrapped bundle under his arm, and he accosted him. Norburg was about to leave, but he was stopped, but at first said that he had bought it Saturday. He finally admitted that he had just purchased it. Without further ado the officer stalked into the saloon through the door left open by Norburg and confronted the bartender, who was behind the bar, evidently ready for the next customer.

Another bartender was asleep in a corner and two or three men were in the saloon.

"I guess I want you," remarked the officer to the bartender, and the latter, without saying a word, donned his hat and accompanied the officer to the police station.

The bartender had nothing to say about the matter, but Norburg admitted that he had purchased the beer from Schaeffels. The latter was required to furnish $100 bail, and Norburg was informed that he would be wanted as a witness in the case to-day.

The officers say that so far as they were able to ascertain, the other saloons were closed yesterday. Four drunks were found on the street, but all of them were provided with bottles, which the officers consider as evidence that they purchased the liquor Saturday.

HARRIMAN'S PAD IS HORSES. Multi-millionaire Railroad Magnate is Fond of Trotters.

(New York Commercial Advertiser.) There are few more enthusiastic breeders of the trotting horse than E. H. Harriman, multi-millionaire and railroad magnate, whose magnificent 10,000-acre estate in Orange county, New York, some ten miles from Tuxedo, is one of the best equipped in the east for the breeding of trotters and blooded cattle. Mr. Harriman finds but little time aside from the weighty responsibilities of his office in the Equitable building to devote to his horses, but such time as he can spare is spent here in thorough enjoyment of perhaps the only hobby or diversion he permits himself to indulge in. Whenever possible Mr. Harriman tries out his own colts. He is a thorough judge and an expert handler of a horse, and is only slightly satisfied with what there is in a four-footed youngster when he has himself held the reins over him.

Like ex-Governor Morton, George J. Gould, William K. Vanderbilt, James R. Keane, William C. Winney and others of his business associates and rivals who direct some of the greatest American business and industrial enterprises, Mr. Harriman finds it advisable, if not essential, to seek occasional relief from the atmosphere of "the street," and at such times there is no more likely place to find him than at his Orange county estate, where his horses, his herds and his Southdowns afford him a welcome source of relief from business cares.

Mr. Harriman began his business career in Wall street less than thirty years ago, with none of the vast wealth he has since acquired. Within the past few years he has become the rival, if not the peer, of the greatest financiers of his time—a power in stupendous enterprises and a controlling factor in some of the greatest railway properties in the world. From these, however, Mr. Harriman is ready, whenever possible, to turn to the horse for pleasure and diversion.

EVERY PLAN FOR FORT HALL

Rich Farms May be Drawn as Prizes.

OPENING OF RESERVATION

EX-SENATOR SHOUPE IN THE CITY.

The ceded strip of the Fort Hall reservation will probably be opened before the end of the year by the lottery method, according to ex-Senator George L. Shoupe of Salmon City, Ida., who stopped over in Salt Lake for Sunday. While the exact time and method of opening the new land for settlement has not yet been decided upon, according to the ex-senator, the drawing system is under favorable consideration, with the prospects bright for its adoption. If this is done, the holders of the lucky numbers giving them the preference in selections of lands will have opportunities to take property close to Pocatello and worth several times the government price. This is likely to result in a rush.

The land lying closest to Pocatello cannot be bought for less than $10 an acre in any event.

"I am advised by the interior department that every effort is being made to get the reservation opened this fall," said the ex-senator. "If the opening is put off until spring it will result in considerable further delay, and I believe it possible to get everything ready before the first of the year."

The part near Pocatello will be sold in four-acre tracts. The tracting is done to make a greater number of homes. The ceded strip contains about 400,000 acres, and some 100,000 acres is agricultural land. There ought to be a good demand for this land, and I think there will be."

Arid Land Legislation.

Mr. Shoupe feels hopeful for the success of some kind of arid land legislation by congress. He thinks the action of Senator Clark in talking a river and harbor bill to death because of the refusal to recognize the needs of the west has had a beneficial effect.

"It is difficult to find a plan for irrigation which meets the approval of all the western members of congress, and which will pass muster with the easterners. I would like to see an expert investigation of the irrigation possibilities all over the west, and a report on just what can be accomplished by national aid. Then the government could meet the states at least half way and advance the money to put in the great irrigation works, receiving the money back from the sale of the lands at increased prices. The proposition to devote the proceeds of the sale of public lands to this purpose is hardly satisfactory, because so much of the public land remaining uncultivated is valueless without water. With the investment of enough money to bring water to it, the land would be valuable."

Mr. Shoupe says the hay crop around Salmon City is short, and that cattlemen are looking for means to feed their stock through the winter. As high as $3 a ton has been paid in Salmon for hay. The people up there are looking expectantly for the Oregon Short Line to build up that way, and are confident they can furnish a traffic which will justify such a step. The ex-senator left last night for Boise.

Richfield, Nov. 24—A final report shows that 554 tons of sugar beets were raised by Richfield parties this year. The average crop here has been 10 tons per acre. The more successful crops went from eight to twelve tons per acre. Nearly all who tried beet raising last year were the most successful this year. As more than half the raisers this season were beginners, the success was very gratifying, and there is a big increase in sugar beet enthusiasts in this place. Those who have been in the business here have been enriched $2,216.

Now that the money has come in for the crop, and many growers have received a lump sum of from $500 to $250, which is something rare in the usual farming conditions, there will be a big increase in the acreage to be devoted to this purpose next season, and it is believed, with a little energetic soliciting, enough will be guaranteed to insure the establishment of a factory.

The condition of Sheriff Clark, who was shot by George "Boss" Long at the Thursday evening, continues to be not alarming. He is progressing as nicely as could be expected, and the doctors are looking for a complete recovery. He is now in the hospital, and he will be around again soon.

Prove Tailor Sustains Ugly Wound in Head. (Special to The Herald.) Prove, Nov. 21.—This afternoon at a little after 2 o'clock William Johnson, a tailor employed by the Prove Tailoring company, went to the work shop and found his fellow workman, Robert Mathiason, lying on the floor with an ugly wound in the back of the head and in a semi-conscious condition. He was comatose, if not insensible, and the blood was pouring from the wound. The wound was about an inch long and was found on the back of the man's head, but the skull was not injured.

It was apparent that Mathiason, while under the influence of liquor, had fallen to the floor, striking his head upon the edge of a water bucket. After the wound was dressed the injured man was taken to his home and seems to be all right tonight.

VERNAL HAPPENINGS.

Vernal, Nov. 21.—County Attorney John Pope, who is interested in the Utah Colorado Oil company, received word to-day that the company's boring machinery is now all on the ground in the vicinity of the Dewey Springs, and the work of drilling will begin at an early date. Mr. Pope will close out his mercantile business in Vernal in the immediate future and open up a similar business at Dewey Springs, which he believes will be a lively point.

The California company, operating on White river, near Rangely, has its machinery also on the ground ready for operations, and is hustling things into shape a rapid rate.

John Slough came in from the Bromide mine on Douglas mountain today and reports that about over for this season. Several teams, however, will be engaged for some time to haul bullion from the smelter to the railroad.

Sylvanus, the 6-year-old son of Orson Calder of Vernal, died yesterday of a disease of the throat. Several deaths from throat disease have occurred recently and some alarm is felt that it may sweep
